Preface

This publication is the seventh in a continuing cumulative series designed to bring under bibliographic control United States newspapers that have been reduced to microform and are housed permanently in United States, Canadian, and other foreign libraries as well as in the vaults of domestic and foreign commercial producers of microforms. Newspapers in Microform: United States and its companion volume, Newspapers in Microform: Foreign Countries, supersede the sixth edition of Newspapers on Microfilm, published in 1967. The new title recognizes the increasing use of microfiche and micro-opaque techniques, in addition to the established use of roll film, in the microphotographic reproduction of newspapers. For the first time an alphabetic index of titles is provided to further aid the researcher in locating places of publication for newspapers.

Catalog entries were prepared from reports submitted by 843 libraries and 48 commercial firms. The volume lists 34,289 titles, with 2,308 cross references, in 7,457 localities of the United States and its territories and possessions. The success of the catalog depends on the support of reporting institutions, and the Library is grateful for their continued cooperation.

Introduction

Contents. This volume is a cumulation of all reports contained in the United States section of Newspapers on Microfilm (1948–67), together with reports received through the summer of 1972. The later editions of Newspapers on Microfilm had included a number of references to microprint editions of certain papers, and the appearance of a variety of microfiche and micro-opaque forms in the reproduction of an increasing number of newspapers seemed to demand a change of title for this edition in the interest of accuracy.

It is assumed that in the near future microforms of newspapers published in the United States will be brought under more or less definitive control, so far as historical data and the ownership of master negatives are concerned. Microreproduction of foreign newspapers, on the other hand, is in an early stage of development. Reports on foreign newspapers, including those issued in Canada, are therefore being published in a companion volume, Newspapers in Microform: Foreign Countries. This plan should allow greater flexibility in issuing supplements or later editions of each publication and may also serve the varying interests of different users.

History. In June 1941, the Journal of Documentary Reproduction published an 11-page "Preliminary Checklist of Newspapers on Microfilm" by George A. Schwegmann, Jr., chief of the Union Catalog Division in the Library of Congress. Mr. Schwegmann informed his readers that "during the past few years thousands of volumes of newspapers have been reproduced on microfilm by various agencies in the United States" and that consequently the Library of Congress had "undertaken to maintain a separate union catalog of newspaper microfilm entries." This catalog was now being published so that the "existence or locations [of these newspapers on microfilm] might be made known to potential users," and "that librarians everywhere [might] be stimulated to report their holdings to the Union Catalog."

The growth of the catalog warranted the publication in 1948 of a separate bibliography entitled Newspapers on Microfilm: A Union Check List. This contained reports on both domestic and foreign newspapers and was published in Philadelphia under the imprint of the Association of Research Libraries, which had begun to play a significant role in coordinating and reporting microfilming projects. At the request of the association, the Library of Congress established a Microfilming Clearing House on July 5, 1949, to serve as a central source of information about "extensive microfilming projects involving newspapers, serials, and manuscript collections either contemplated, under way, or completed at various institutions." In March 1951, the Clearing House began issuing the Microfilming Clearing House Bulletin as an appendix to the Library of Congress Information Bulletin, to report on new projects and on the availability of newly filmed materials.

The second edition of Newspapers on Microfilm was published by the Library of Congress in 1953. It was hoped at the time that the Microfilming Clearing House Bulletin might serve as a continuing supplement to this second edition, but that hope failed to materialize. A third edition (1957) was followed in 1959 by Supplement I, which stated that the best way to obtain up-to-date information about the availability of microfilms of newspapers was to write to the Union Catalog Division. Mr. Schwegmann went on to produce a fourth edition of Newspapers on Microfilm in 1961, a fifth in 1963, and a sixth in 1967. The problem of currency of information gradually became less acute as more newspapers were filmed and reports on them were published in these successive editions. When Mr. Schwegmann retired in 1970, the publications of the Union Catalog Division became the responsibility of the newly formed Catalog Publication Division, which created the Microform Publications Unit to publish Newspapers on Microfilm, the National Register of Microform Masters, and the Microfilming Clearing House Bulletin.

Scope. One of the problems facing contributors to any bibliography of newspapers is the definition of a newspaper. The second and third editions of Newspapers on Microfilm stated that a publication was recognized as a newspaper if it appeared in Winifred Gregory's Union List of Newspapers; the later editions added "Brigham's History and Bibliography of American Newspapers, 1690–1820, The Newspaper Press Directory [London], and similar guides." The Photoduplication Service of the Library of Congress accepts the definition of a newspaper as "any periodical publication, put on sale to the general public, which serves as an initial source of written news of current events" (Preface, Specifications for the Microfilming of Newspapers in the Library of Congress, Washington, 1972). In its 1971 "Temporary Instructions for Reporting to Newspapers on Microfilm," the Catalog Publication Division listed a number of criteria for reporting to the present edition, among which were characteristics of format: "a newspaper is a serial which . . . usually does not have a cover, and is published at least once a month in a format of not less than four columns of type per page."

Ultimately, the determination of what constitutes a newspaper must be made by the reporting institution. When a particular question does arise, the Library's editors will accept a publication as a newspaper if it is listed by Brigham or Gregory, appears in the newspaper directories of Rowell or Ayer up to 1929, or is described in Ayer's Directory of Newspapers and Periodicals since 1930 as having a depth of more than 10 inches (140 agate lines) and a format of at least four columns. This bibliography thus includes religious, collegiate, labor, and other special-interest papers that were excluded in Newspapers on Microfilm.

Entries. A second problem arises in describing the name of a newspaper. Some reports tend to use the popular name instead of the official name—Star rather than Newton Evening Star, for example. Many newspapers themselves contribute to the confusion by placing keywords—Newton or Evening—in small type on separate lines or within banners or other words, so that the reader perceives only the large words—The Star—and misses the "Newton" and "Evening" descriptors. Ayer's Directory omits all parts of a title which refer to the city of publication or the periodicity of the paper (daily, weekly, evening, etc.), so that again the Newton Evening Star appears simply as Star.

For the present publication two criteria have been employed in determining the standard name of a newspaper: 1) unless contrary information is available, the listing in Brigham or Gregory is used; 2) the name reported to the Library of Congress is accepted in the absence of such a listing, unless experience with the reporting institution indicates that, for example, the name of the city of publication is always omitted in their reports. In such a case the name of the city may be added to the title reported, on the supposition that the longer title is more accurate. When the reporting institution prefixes every title with the name of the city, it is more difficult, of course, to decide that the city name may not be a part of the true title. The reader is therefore cautioned that he should be flexible in searching this bibliography for titles. What he thinks of as the Star will be listed by its official name, Newton Evening Star; on the other hand, a paper actually called The Morning Tribune may appear as either Tribune or Madison Morning Tribune because of a peculiarity in the report received.

Publication dates are furnished whenever possible, and the frequency of publication is indicated. Historical notes in the body of the entry follow the principles of successive entry cataloging by noting the immediate predecessor as well as the immediate successor of a title. This method supersedes the former practice, adopted by Gregory and others, of entering a newspaper under its latest title, with cross-references from former titles. Cross-references are employed only when the dates of publication for a former title are not known or, in a few instances, when a publication has had a history of moving from locality to locality before becoming established. In such cases the place or places of publication are noted on the established title.

Arrangement. Entries are arranged geographically by state and by city under the state. The former practice of keyword arrangement has been supplanted by an alphabetical arrangement according to the proper masthead title. To aid the reader in identifying the place of publication, an alphabetical title index is provided which shows the city and state of publication as they are found in the geographical list.

Accuracy of Reports. In compiling the historical data for this bibliography, the editors relied upon the standard newspaper bibliographies for the United States and upon the various state bibliographies which have been published over the years by state historical societies and similar organizations. We are particularly grateful to a number of reporting libraries which provided dates and title changes not available in other sources.

This volume reflects certain difficulties associated with the cataloging of newspapers. In particular the following three problems should be noted:

1) Almost all institutions have reported their holdings under the latest title. In reconstructing the story of a newspaper the editors have sometimes been compelled to make statements that are simply more probable or to omit some part of the report entirely. To give a hypothetical example, an institution reports that it has the Jonesville Times-Herald from 1923 to the present on film. Investigation reveals, however, that the Jonesville Times-Herald was created in 1936 by the merger of the Jonesville Times and the Logan County Herald. If the Jonesville Times first appeared in 1930 and the Logan County Herald in 1898, this bibliography will show that the reporting institution has the Logan County Herald on film from 1923 to 1936 and the Jonesville Times-Herald from 1936 to the present. It is possible, of course, that the reporting institution has the Logan County Herald from 1923 to 1932, and the Jonesville Times from 1933 to 1936. Only the Logan County Herald is mentioned here, however, because it is the more probable holding. If the Jonesville Times and the Logan County Herald both began publication before 1923, we cannot know which paper is held by the reporting institution, and since it is unlikely that both are held, we report neither. Fortunately, such cases are not common, for reporting institutions often clarify such problems. When discrepancies do occur between what is reported and what appears in this publication, further information from the reporting institution is needed.

2) In some cases the reader will be disappointed to find that no master negative is mentioned even though an institution reports a positive service copy. For example, a commercial microfilming company may have gone out of business. The Recordak Corporation is the best known example. Many of its negatives have been traced to other commercial producers, who are now listed as holding the master negatives, but unfortunately not all the Recordak titles have been identified.

In other instances a library wishing to microfilm its newspapers may have enlisted the aid of a local photographer or a company specializing in the microfilming of, for example, business records. In such a situation, once a positive copy is produced to the library's satisfaction, the negative may be discarded, disappear into an unmarked file in the microfilming company's office, or even be filed in the library's own collection of unidentified objects. For all practical purposes there never was a master negative, and so one is not available now.

When no master negative is mentioned, it may be possible to borrow the positive copy listed here. It is also possible that the holder of the positive copy may have information about a master negative that has not been reported. Most reporting institutions are not prepared to act as clearinghouses for such information, however, especially if their microfilm collection has been assembled over a long period of time.

3) Finally, the reader is cautioned that almost no microfilm of a newspaper is actually complete, even for current runs. In this bibliography, brackets indicate runs that are known to be partial or badly broken. A run of a daily paper is considered complete, however, if only a few issues per month are missing.

In general, the period 1830–70 has the poorest coverage of all. The period 1775–1815 is represented by runs of papers that are surprisingly complete, perhaps because newspapers were not so numerous and were considered to be more significant. Contemporary coverage is generally good, but significant gaps are not uncommon.

Location of Microforms. Location of the microform is indicated by a standard library symbol, based on the latest edition of Symbols of American Libraries, and by additional symbols for commercial producers of microforms and a few foreign libraries. The type of microform is indicated by an abbreviation (a small letter or letters) immediately following the symbol. A list of symbols and a separate list of abbreviations follow this introduction.

Future Reports. The Library of Congress depends upon users of this catalog and upon reporting institutions for additional information. We need better information about the exact name of many newspapers, more complete information about which of several possible papers a reporting institution actually holds (as in the example of the Jonesville Times-Herald), and more precise information about beginning, merging, and ending dates when references give only the year. Further information about master negatives that are not mentioned here would also be welcome.

We therefore repeat the theme that has recurred in every edition of Newspapers on Microfilm: this data is presented as the best we have at the moment, in the hope that it will be useful and will encourage those concerned to fill in the gaps in the information.

Inquiries. Report forms are available for those who wish to contribute to future issues of Newspapers in Microform: United States. Instructions on how to report will be sent with these forms. It would be helpful if revisions or supplementary data were noted as such, to avoid uncertainty about conflicts with data already published. All information, requests for reporting forms, and inquiries about editorial matters should be addressed to the Library of Congress, Catalog Publication Division, Newspapers in Microform, Washington, D.C. 20540. Correspondence regarding subscriptions and other business questions should be addressed to the Card Division, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20541.
